DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, it is not clear how the sensor lever, the catch lever, and the return spring are structurally related to each other or the other claimed elements. In claim 1, paragraph f, the structure of the tab protruding through the slot is not clearly or accurately claimed, since it appears that the tab will only protrude if the magazine follower is in the upper most position, but this is not clear in the claim language. In claims 2 and 4, "AK47-type or its variant" is alternative and indefinite.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Irwin (6,510,778) in view of Herring (6,851,346).

Irwin discloses a firearm with a mechanism for preventing a bolt carrier from moving forward after firing the last round of ammunition, comprising a sensor lever 2, a "thumb release" 12, a catch lever 1 pivoted on the housing, and a magazine in which the sensor lever detects the lack of a round of ammunition and activates the catch lever to hold open the bolt carrier. Irwin fails to show the magazine having a tab mounted on the magazine follower such that it protrudes out the top of the magazine when the magazine is empty, or that the thumb release is on the sensor lever. Herring teaches that it is known to provide a tab on the follower of a magazine such that a lever senses the lack of rounds in the magazine and acts to hold open the bolt. See especially column 9, lines 45-50. Motivation to combine is the mere substitution of one known empty magazine sensing means for another that will function in substantially the same manner. To employ the teachings of Herring on the firearm of Irwin and have a magazine with a tab on the magazine follower is considered to have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art. The mere substitution of the release lever 12 from the catch lever to the sensor lever is also considered to have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art. This would involve merely having the release attached to a different part of the system selectively holding or releasing the bolt carrier and it would function in exactly the same manner no matter to which of the two levers it was attached, since merely pushing the release lever and causing either one of the catch or sensor to pivot would result in the bolt carrier being released after it was locked in the open position.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Westrom and Ruger et al are cited as being of interest since they disclose bolt locking means.
